Programme Overview

Programme overview

This new programme is designed for those working or wishing to work within the adult health and social care sector. This may include those working in a variety of settings such as dementia care, domiciliary care, drug and alcohol services and support services for those with mental health concerns. In line with the need for more integrated and collaborative working this will also include those working in NHS and the voluntary sector.

The Certificate of Higher Education and the Foundation Degree in Adult Health and Social Care allow you to formulate robust links from theory to practice supporting them to become a compassionate and effective practitioner. Topics will include exploration of legal and ethical issues, reflective practice, resilience and wellbeing, advocacy and the principles of care. Legislation, policy and contemporary issues along with considering innovation with a solution focus for any areas of improvement within the sector will also be explored. These topics will be examined both locally and nationally.

For those students who wish to further progress onto the Level 6 Top Up will continue to build on the learning at the previous 2 levels of study and immerse themselves in the wider societal and political ideologies that impact on the discipline. Students will be encouraged to evaluate and critically discuss contemporary issues both nationally and internationally.

You will learn knowledge and expertise sought by sector employers, such as employability skills, research skills, problem solving skills and critical thinking. There will be opportunity to explore the key contemporary topics within the sector such as health inequalities, analysing how they are being addressed. Through the links forged with sector employers you will broaden your knowledge of pertinent topics within the field required of a resilient, effective and compassionate practitioner.

Study Workload

A typical workload for this programme will require attendance at University for 1 day per week where you will participate in 3 taught sessions a day and both group and independent progress tutorials.

Further independent study of approximately 10 hours per module a week is advisable; this includes further reading, planning and writing time.

Programme Delivery: Learning and Teaching

On the Foundation Degree programme, you will experience many forms of teaching which may include lectures, seminars, tutorials and project supervision. External visits from sector specialists will forge strong links between theory and practice and further provide the opportunity to explore the sector. There is strong emphasis on peer collaboration within class room work.

At BA (Hons) level you will take part in research activities involving sector collaboration. There are opportunities for independent task work and team orientated seminar discussion. A mixture of lecture and seminar sessions are further supported by peer led sessions on topics of choice.

Progress tutorials will provide support and guidance as you go through your academic journey with us and a named progress tutor will provide personalised support.

Our partners for success team can offer academic support and careers guidance.

Programme Delivery: Assessment

You will experience diverse forms of assessment during your Foundation Degree including essay writing, report writing and case study work which will specifically link to the skills and attributes required within the vast area of Health and Social Care.

Communication is seen as a significant focus on the programme with the opportunity to develop small scale presentation skills within a group situation. This is necessary to be an effective practitioner when working with health and allied services.

You will have detailed feedback on all assignment work both verbally and in writing and this will help you to improve your academic skills.

You will develop keen research skills culminating in a small scale research project on the second year of the Foundation Degree.

At BA (Hons) level you will continue to develop your research skills with the production a Dissertation.

Throughout the programme you will be given feedback on draft work and plans and at times, via an in class quiz. This will provide you with the opportunity to improve your work.

Programme Delivery: Work Based and Placement Learning

It is a requirement that you are in paid or voluntary work for a minimum of 4 hours a week.

We have an extensive network of employer connections and potential students can contact these connections for volunteer roles.

The programme forges strong links between theory and practice with guest speakers from industry and the use of real life case studies and reflective accounts within the teaching and learning environment.

The programme offers the opportunity to engage with a range of contemporary topics representing the challenges within the Adult Health and Social Care sector and taking into account the vulnerability of the client groups.

You will take a solution focused stance to problem solving via research led project work making recommendations for best practice.

Programme Delivery: Graduate Skill Development

Graduate skills are imperative for your successful progression in the sector and for the acquirement of senior career roles.

They are vital for both personal and professional development.

A commitment to lifelong learning and career development

Personal and professional reflection and career planning will be undertaken throughout the Degree in modules such as reflective Practice at Level 4 and Principles of Care at Level 5. At Level 6 Innovation and Entrepreneurship will allow you to explore areas for development withing CPD.

Collaborative teamwork and leadership skills

These skills will be developed using case study and seminar work which will promote peer and team working. This skill is required in your working practice in the integration of practices between Health and Social Care services.

Personal and Intellectual autonomy

There is a strong focus not only on teamwork but also on developing intellectual and practice based autonomy. The programme develops these skills via independent learning tasks both in class and in research projects with sector collaboration.

Ethical, Social and professional understanding

It is imperative that you recognise the nature of working with vulnerable client groups. Through real life case study work you will explore issues such as gender complexity, marginalised communities, patient choice and advocacy and wellbeing. Political ideology is debated in modules such as Social Policy at Level 4 and Strategic Priorities at Level 5 and at Level 6 Contemporary Issues and Human Rights modules.

Communication, Information and Digital Literacies

Communication and digital literacy is a key requirement within Health and Social Care and for all postgraduate courses leading to a professional career. You will enhance your skills are via Academic and Digital Literacy modules at Level 4 and Piece to Camera in Reflective Practice which builds confidence in public speaking along with peer led presentations on the programme. At Level 6, an assessed verbal seminar with written report to support promotes group communication and information sharing.

Global Citizenship

You will compare and contrast policy and provision within a global, national and local arena on this programme. In modules such as Legal and Ethical Issues at Level 4, Advocacy and Wellbeing and Contemporary Issues at Level 6 you will discuss how clients and family members needs are met and take a solution focused stance to the potential issues that prohibit fair and equitable treatment.

Research, scholarship and enquiry skills

You will develop enquiry skills and hone research skill beginning at Level 4 with wider reading sourcing valid supporting documents for essay writing. At Level 5 you will undertake a research project which you may wish to continue at Level 6 with Dissertation which will ask that you address a contemporary issue within the sector and seek solutions to that problem.

Enterprise and Entrepreneurial skills

You will focus on Quality Improvement in Health and Social Care identifying areas of your workplace you feel could be improved, drawing up a plan of action working with sector leaders. Taking an innovative approach at Level 5 focusing on health inequalities in the community, the module Strategic Priorities in Health and Social Care will enable you to take an enquiring approach to government issues and address their strategies for improving equity of care.

The ability to solve unforeseen problems with creativity and imagination

On the programme you will be supported to develop a problem solving approach which will be necessary in supporting vulnerable communities which are found in the local area with high levels of deprivation and poverty. In research based modules at Level 5 and 6 you will seek to solve sector based issues taking an innovative approach. Progress tutorials will support you to devise target setting and consider creative solutions to any barriers that may be obscuring your vision.
